JCI Makati FREE Content Management System

"That economic justice can best be won by freemen through free enterprise..." JCI Makati opens their website platform (Content Management System) to chapters that needs a website for FREE. The system is free (usually it costs P30k-60k to develop). Our only request from the chapter is to shoulder the other expenses like the minimal hosting fees.

JCI Makati is proud to develop their own website application (Web2.0) since a lot of them are founders and head of I.T. companies. This our way of sharing our skills and resources to others. Though we understand the value of excellence of every Jaycees, therefore we will not hold back the chapter (who will be using our platform) to bid their chapter's website to AREACON and NATCON. Our Past President Anton Shecker also pioneered this award category during his term as a national officer. JCI Makati will be conducting a workshop on how to create your own website on the 2007 Metro Area Conference and hopefully to NATCON. We will be discussing the detailed features on how to use our Web Application/Platform. How to customize and take advantage over it. JCI Makati is also proud to develop the JCIBLOG.com, soon to be a National Project. We just have to tweak some features as requested by the National Board of Officers. Once set, we'll officially promote/launch JCIBLOG.com to the world. We are also proud to launch JCINEWS.net, a DIGG.com look alike where anyone can post news and vote the news.

Another product of JCI MAKATI... MAKA-I.T.
